Hurricane Winds Hit Revelstoke Building Supplies

Hurricane force winds that gusted up to an estimated 150 miles an hour caused an estimated $35,000.00 damage to Revelstoke Building Supplies Ltd. at Sentinel during the early hours on Monday morning as the wind ripped buildings apart and scattered lumber piles for miles.

The terrific winds demolished a huge conditioning shed south of the Companies drying kiln and also tore off part of the roof of the sawdust bin and fuel hopper. A large 32 x 60 foot garage building used to store the companies busses and fork lifts and other mobile machinery was twisted and blown down. The cyclone unit on top of the drying shed was also ripped from its base and concrete foundations used to support the building were ripped out of the ground. A smaller garage building was also blown down and the roof and parts of the wall have not yet been located.

The Lumber companies anemometer charts that only read up to 120 mile per hour had gone to a maximum and it is estimated from this that winds attained hurricane speeds of 150 miles per hour. The company have now put in 200 mile an hour charts to register the velocity. The records showed that winds of an average 110 M.P.H. blew for some nine hours.

According to Gordon Fisher production superintendent of Revelstoke Building Materials Limited, it will take an estimated three weeks to get the kiln repaired depending on weather conditions. It is not anticipated that men will be laid off as the men will be put to work piling lumber and doing repair work. The busses of forty men were sent home on Monday morning as the wind was so strong it was rocking the busses and some that came to work could barely open the doors of their vehicles to get out.

Saratoga Processing gas plant east of the Lumber company reported some minor damage while Jefferson Lake Sulphur would not comment. Reports also indicate that the Sinclair Oil drilling rig west of the Vicary Creek Sawmill north west of Coleman closed down operations due to the high winds.

Firemen To Hold M. D. Tag Day December 7

Fire Chief Henry Zak of the Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade announced this week that the brigade are again sponsoring the Muscular Dystrophy drive for funds. Canisters have again been set up in the various stores and business houses in Coleman and Blairmore, and a tag day is to be held in Coleman on December 7.

Mr. Zak will also arrange for a tag day to be held in Blairmore as the firemen have set their objective at $1,000.00 this year.

In order to reach this goal, Mr. Zak stated the firemen are planning on holding a giant cash bingo on December 8th that will feature a main jackpot prize of $500 cash if 600 or more persons attend; $375.00 if only 450 attend; $250.00 if 300 attend or $125.00 if 150 persons attend.

The bingo night will also feature ten other cash prizes and games will get underway at 8:15 p.m. sharp.

With announcements being made that doctors have almost reached their goal in the fight to overcome and aid Muscular Dystrophy, the firemen are going all-out to try to raise more funds to speed up the work being done by the doctors doing the research.

National Employment Services Urge Winter Works Projects

F. J. Lote, manager of the Blairmore offices of the National Employment Services, stated this week that winter works projects are well underway in the Crows Nest Pass and as a result the economy of the area is good. This is the time of the year, states Mr. Lote, when the business men, industrialists and householders are urged to join in the campaign to promote winter employment.

It has been suggested that promoting winter work can be done by getting maintenance, repairs, renovations and decorations done, expanding facilities and producing and stock-piling standard products.

The householder can take part in this campaign during the winter by interior decorating construction of wanted recreation rooms, remodeling kitchens and bathrooms, electrical repairs and many other items that need to be done around the home.

If manpower is required the National Employment Service office can supply the labor needed, especially during the slack winter period, and skilled tradesmen, semi-skilled workers and general labor are now available.

Some of the local business houses in the Pass are participating in the winter works schemes, and some of the projects underway include a new warehouse being built at Bellevue by Sickoff's Hardware, the Alberta Government Telephone are extending their facilities at Bellevue, the provincial government is building new, large liquor store at Blairmore and Hall's Funeral Services Ltd. have now commenced construction of a new funeral home and chapel at Blairmore and are demolishing two old buildings at Coleman to make way for a new funeral chapel for the convenience of the town of Coleman.

These business men are to be commended for their foresight in taking advantage of the available labor and assisting local unemployed by having these projects done during the slow-time winter months.

The staff of the local N.E.S. office at Blairmore have announced they will be pleased to help in any way they can to assist anyone in doing or planning winter works "Do It Now" campaigns.

With Armistice Day falling on a Sunday this year, Legions in the Crows Nest Pass towns marked Remembrance Day with the usual services at the Cenotaphs and special Church services held in the various churches in the Pass.

The usual Remembrance Day ceremonies were cancelled this year in order that they do not clash with Church Services.

Stripping overburden at an average rate of 11,000 tons a day, this dragline operation is the beginning stage in the flow of coal to the Calgary Power Ltd. steam plant located a mile away. The Company has completed its third unit addition to the plant — a 200,000 horse power turbo generator which more than doubles the capacity of the plant. Operated at high load factor, the number three steam unit will produce 14 billion kilowatt hours per year to meet the company's growing energy requirements. The steam generator for the new installation is the highest natural circulation unit in Canada. It will produce 1,015,000 pounds of steam per hour. The coal burning extension to the plant is expected to consume 780,000 tons of coal per year. The strip mine in which the dragline is operating contains five main coal seams of a total thickness of approximately 20 feet and proven reserves sufficient for the lifetime of a plan of 610,000 horse power capacity.

Spray-on Stockings?

Canada's textile industry holds an interesting textile seminar each year to keep itself up to date, and exciting news is usually the result when these experts gather. Exciting to technologists and ladies, that is. Depressing, in this case, to me.

Thomas Edmon, of the Philadelphia College of Textiles & Science, was the man who noted that "there is no reason why a very sheer stocking should not be imitated with a spray of fabric-like solution applied directly on women's legs."

This thought has disturbed me ever since I read about it. I live in a household of females — five of them — and part of the homelike atmosphere I've grown used to is the familiar stocking, dangling from shower-curtain rods, dropped over the towel holders, or heaped in a gossamer pyramid on the dresser where I hunt for my cuff links or tie clips. I am going to miss this delightfully feminine disarray. It has become part of my life.

While I am glad to learn that the Canadian textile people are keeping themselves up to date, I must confess that in this instance I hope they drag their feet a bit. You see, whenever a silk stocking is abandoned by one of my daughters, I snatch it. There is no better car-wash aid than a couple of old silk stockings, dipped in detergent. Recently, I acquired a used pair and tucked them in the back pocket of my trousers, intending to put them in the glove compartment of the car. I forgot about them. Apparently, one of them dropped out of my pocket. At any rate, in the MOSS I GATHER column of the Winnipeg Tribune next day, I read: "I SAW a man walking down Portage Avenue with a woman's silk stocking hanging below his coat."

Some woman won $5 for sending in that I SAW feature, and I was the butt of several family jokes about the matter for a couple of days. This sort of family fun will be wiped out with the spray-gun approach.

I suppose I am an old reactionary, but if progress means the end of sheer silk stockings I'm agin it. If the textile industry wants to monkey with tradition, let it come up with adhesive shirt cuffs and ties that need no clips.

AN ALBERTA EMERGENCY!

While the Cuban crisis has attracted the attention of the world, we who live in Alberta have an emergency on our own doorstep.

The Alberta Safety Council issued a news release which reads in part as follows:

"The year is turning into the deadliest ever on Alberta highways. A black August—40 deaths, the most ever reported for that month — pushed 1962's eight-month toll to 167. At 18,258 the number of reported accidents is rising 18 per cent above last year's record levels. And the injury toll, 4,323, is up 6 per cent."

Many precautions for safety have been instituted, such as safer highways, better constructed cars with four-wheel hydraulic brakes, safer tires, lower centre of gravity, steel bodies, trained drivers and better traffic control.

When will the officials and the public waken up to the fact that there is a missing cog in this safety machine?

The missing cog is REDUCTION IN THE USE OF INTOXICANTS.

An effective way to achieve this purpose is to legalize a chemical test to determine the alcohol content of the blood of drivers. The license-to-drive form should include a clause of implied consent to submit to such a test on demand by a traffic officer.

It is estimated that at least 40 per cent of all fatal highway accidents have liquor involved. Reduce the use of intoxicants by drivers and save lives.

"Seat Belts Are Safe" — CHSC

"The fact that some seat belts failed to measure up to the new standards established by the Canadian Standards Association does not necessarily mean they are unsafe," declared W. Arch Bryce, executive director of the Canadian Highway Safety Council. "Some of them failed because one out of a number of belts submitted for testing revealed that its color was not fast. Another failed to meet the 4,000-pound force test by one or two per cent, although it did withstand a force considerably greater than it might ever be required to meet."

Mr. Bryce spoke in connection with a flurry caused recently by the report of an interview with a CSA official in Vancouver.

"After a number of years of crash research experiments and studies in the United States by automobile manufacturers in co-operation with university researchers, and the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars and a great deal of time and energy by these experts, it was established that seat belts, if used, would save lives and reduce the severity of injuries. Based on this undeniable advice, the Canadian Highway Safety Council has been conducting a nation-wide campaign to promote the use of seat belts in cars in Canada. In this it has had strong support from provincial safety groups, governments, the police, the medical, legal and judicial professions, the National Council of Women and many others. Out of these promotions, a new Canadian industry has grown and had begun to flourish. Manufacturers of seat belts participated in drawing up the new CSA standards for belts which are based on standards previously set by the Society of Automotive Engineers. The SAE standards were met by belts made by responsible manufacturers before the CSA standard was introduced. Thus belts sold in Canada prior to September 1st, when CSA issued its standards, were reliable if they bore the legend, 'SAE J4'.

"Since the CHSC belt campaign began in September, 1961, the Council had recommended only belts identified as having met SAE standards. As with any product, inferior items will be offered, but no item carrying the SAE identification—now the CSA certification—is likely to be inferior."

The wide publicity given to the Vancouver interview, and the subsequent publicity given to the need for motorists to ascertain the quality of the belts they buy, may in the long run, result in greater care being given by purchasers to belt quality.

It was unfortunate, Mr. Bryce said, that this had to come about by publication and broadcast of inadequate information which seriously distorted the motorists' viewpoint in relation to seat belts, and disrupted a new and legitimate Canadian industry.

"We feel sure," he said, "that the motorist will recognize the inadequacy of the information contained in the original item and the fact that seat belts identified as SAE or CSA certified are reliable and safe and will prevent death and injury in traffic accidents to a great extent."

Retail Merchants' Association Opposes Provincial Sales Tax

The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada (Alta.) Inc., have, in a Resolution sent to the Provincial Government today, gone on record as being unalterably opposed to any form of Provincial Sales Tax being imposed at the retail level.

Contents of R.M.A.'s letter to Premier E. C. Manning is as follows:

Honorable Sir:

The Retailers in Alberta are gravely concerned over the persistency of published statements and reports which indicate that your Government will probably introduce a Sales Tax within the next year.

This important matter was discussed at the meeting of the Provincial Board of Directors of the Retail Merchants' Association, which was held on Monday, October 29th, 1962, and a Resolution was unanimously passed that the Provincial Government be informed of the position that the Association has always taken on the matter of Sales Tax.

In accordance with this Resolution, we herewith wish to advise your Government that the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada (Alta.) Inc., is unalterably opposed to any form of Provincial Sales Tax at the Retail Level for the following reasons:

1. They increase the cost of living and impose undue hardships on the medium and low income family groups because they do not consider the taxpayers' ability to pay.
2. They are a costly form of taxation and highly unpopular with both the Public and the Retailers.
3. They place an unjust burden on Retailers and increase their cost of operation.

4. They make the Retailer become a Tax Collector and Record Keeper for the govt.
5. They interfere and interrupt the normal relationship between retailer and customer, and create unnecessary problems and cause confusion and customer complaints.

We honestly and sincerely believe that there is no justification or need for a Sales Tax to be imposed in Alberta.

Winter Works Projects Underway

F. J. Lote, manager of the Blairmore offices of the National Employment Service, stated this week that the Municipal Winter Works projects in the Crows Nest Pass, which are now underway, exceed all projects done in previous years.

Costs of the work on the projects is borne on a participation basis, 50 per cent by the Federal government, 25 per cent provincial government and the balance by the municipalities. This is payroll cost only. All municipalities are taking advantage of the Provincial and Federal assistance to project and complete many needed repairs to utilities and services in town, where labor forces can be utilized during the winter months.

The following is a breakdown to date of the localities and volumes of costs on the approval of submissions:

Fernie projects three, total cost of $52,530.00, with labor cost $26,264.00; Natal, B. C., two, with total cost being $2260.00, and labor cost $1939.00; Blairmore, five projects with total cost being $23,980.00, and labor costs $13,243.00; Bellevue, three projects with total cost being $1708.00, and labor cost $1288.00; Cowley, one project, total cost $73,400.00, labor costs $24,780.00; Provincial Government Department of Public Works, four projects, total cost being $45,500.00, with labor costs being $26,000.00.

These combined projects will provide work for 206 men and the local office of the N.E.S. is placing these men as the projects are being approved and finalized for commencement. So far a total of 57 men have now been placed and are working.

It is understandable how these needed municipal projects will improve utilities, roads and other services of the towns and areas in the Pass and also provide employment, which in turn maintains the buoyancy of the economy of the area.

Chief Red Cross official dies

The death in Puerto Rico recently of Dr. W. S. Stanbury, MBE, BA, MD, removed Canada's chief Red Cross official and ended a career of service in the medical and health fields.

Dr. Stanbury had been National Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society since 1949. His death occurred from a heart attack while attending an Inter-American Red Cross conference in Puerto Rico.

Born in Exeter, Ont., Dr. Stanbury graduated from the University of Toronto School of Medicine and did post-graduate study in the United States and at the Universities of London and Leeds in England.

In 1939 he was appointed Senior Lecturer in Clinical Pathology at Leeds University and at outbreak of the Second World War was chosen by the British Ministry of Health to serve as Transfusion Officer of England's North East Region to help maintain a blood supply for war casualties on the battlefields and home front.

At the close of the war Dr. Stanbury was invited to survey the needs and facilities of Canadian hospitals with a view to establishing a peace-time Blood Transfusion Service. His plan for organizing such a service was inaugurated by the Canadian Red Cross Society in 1947 and he was named National Director. Two years later he became Commissioner of the National Society.

Dr. Stanbury was well known in International Red Cross circles, serving as an executive member of the League of Red Cross Societies and chairman of the League Advisory committee of the League.

He was also a member of the Standing Finance committee, the Junior Red Cross Advisory committee and the Board of Governors.

In recent years Dr. Stanbury was particularly active in the International Red Cross work for reunion of families separated by war and civil disturbances. In 1960 he visited Canadian Red Cross medical teams in Morocco and the Congo Republic.

In recognition of his service he had been decorated by many Red Cross Societies throughout the world.

Dr. Stanbury was a frequent visitor to Alberta throughout his time as National Commissioner.

After obtaining his law degree he became a benchman of the Alberta Law Society. He was an alderman in Lethbridge for several years and has been president of the Lethbridge Chamber of Commerce, president of Lethbridge Red Cross Society, vice-president of the Alberta Red Cross and president of the Lethbridge Progressive Conservatives.

nadian Artillery.

Condensation cause flaking point on ceilings

If paint peels from a ceiling you can suspect moisture is causing the trouble.

When there's a roof leakage, you can be almost sure it's condensation—water carried in air as vapor. Deposited on a cold surface, it becomes water that will run.

Sometimes this will occur in the kitchen adjacent to a fan duct. While the fan feeding warm air into the duct and blowing it out of the house is going, the metal pipe is warmed. When the fan is idle for quite a period of during the day or overnight, the duct metal cools first to room temperature and then colder by reason of the inflow of outside air from the exhaust opening. It can become quite cold a foot or two or three from the wall.

When the next blast of warm off-the-range air is whisked into the duct by the fan, it can experience a chilling upon reaching the colder metal. Such chilling can be expected for a period until the metal gets warmed up.

In the slight interval, condensation can be deposited within the duct, and if the duct joints are not sealed or wrapped tight, and they seldom are, a bit of dew can seep through the joints onto the plaster below and set up the paint flaking.

If the joints are tight, the same condensed water within the duct will be picked up by the air flow as the entire metal channel warms, and be blown out.

Another cause of paint peeling off a ceiling may be from a warm updraft from the cellar between walls or partitions that is subject to a chilling experience on the ceiling with the resultant depositing of water on top of the plaster.

What Is Clay?

Clay is inorganic soil, composed of soil particles that are extremely fine, usually greasy-smooth to the touch when moist. It becomes very compact when wet.

The World Health Organization has set a standard for tuberculosis control. It states that TB may be considered controlled (though not wiped out) when less than one per cent of children of school leaving age are positive to the tuberculin test. No country in the world has yet reached this standard, nor any province in Canada.

During 1961 there were 2600 business failures recorded under the Bankruptcy and Winding Up Acts, a decrease of eight per cent from the preceding year.

Alberta Junior Citizen Award Winner

LINDA BOCHEK

Strathmore, Alberta

Imagine you have complete charge of a household. You're cooking, cleaning, washing and ironing and keeping a big household garden. You're getting your brother, your father and yourself off to school and work each morning . . . and you're only thirteen years old! This is what our award winner Linda Bocek did this year, while her mother was sick in the hospital for two months.

Yet during this time Linda was also taking her first year of music lessons and she advanced so quickly that she passed her Grade Four Royal Conservatory examinations with honors.

She also found time to win first prize in an art contest. And not to ignore her sports activities Linda took part in the annual school track meet and passed her Red Cross Senior swimming test.

Now you'd think with all these activities and responsibilities something would suffer — but not so! She achieved outstanding scholastic success too, passing Grade Seven at Samuel Crowther School with honors in every subject.

We join with editors of Alberta's weekly newspapers in congratulating this girl and her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Bocek, on her outstanding achievements under adverse conditions — truly a "Junior Citizen of the Year."

This is one of six announcements about the 1961-1962 Junior Citizen Award winners. Calgary Power Ltd. gratefully acknowledges the active participation of Alberta's weekly newspaper editors, whose enthusiasm has done so much to make the Alberta Junior Citizen program possible. For this winner our special thanks go to Mr. K. Q. Bergh, Editor of the Strathmore Standard and to Mrs. Mary Mercer of Strathmore who nominated Linda for the award.

Word was received in Blairmore this week that Sid Murray, formerly of Blairmore, passed away suddenly from a heart attack in Edgewood, B. C., on October 27.

Mr. Murray served with the R.C.M.P., and was a sergeant in charge of the detachment in Blairmore about 10 years ago.

He was transferred from Blairmore to Grande Prairie, then to Peace River, and later to Edmonton, where he retired from the force as a staff sergeant.

He moved to Edgewood, B. C., and worked with the British Columbia Forestry Service for some time.

While in Blairmore he was one of the original organizers of the Safety Council, the Home and School Association and the Film Council.

He is survived by his wife Rita in Edgewood, and a son Robert, and a daughter, Mrs. Norman (Patricia) Dennison.

A reception followed in the St. Martin's Church Hall.

Touring Southern Alberta

(The third in a series of articles on a tour of Southern and Central Alberta by six newspaper writers who were guests of the Alberta Tourist Association and written on behalf of members of the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Assn.)

(By George Meyer, Associate Editor, The Camrose Canadian)

On Monday morning, September 10th, our party of six newspaper writers and George LeStrange of the Alberta Tourist Association left Drumheller bound for Lacombe via Stettler, driving on pavement over the whole route, but before bidding farewell to the Badlands, we drove out to the famous little church which has attracted visitors from all over the nation.

At Lacombe we were met by Marwood Swain, who conducted the tour of the town. The first stop was at the shop of a well known manufacturer of fishing lures, Len Thompson. Any fisherman who happens to be holidaying in the Lacombe area will not want to miss a visit to Mr. Thompson's shop, and visitors are always welcome.

Besides his famous lures, Mr. Thompson produces custom made shotgun shells and bullets. Hunters will come from as far as 50 miles away. Mr. Thompson told us, to have him load shells. The making of the Len Thompson lures however, highlighted our visit.

Long strips of brass, silver or copper are put through a large press which punches out the desired sized spoon and at the same time stamps it. About 90 per cent of the lures are made from brass. The machine is capable of producing up to 120 spoons per minute. Small wonder that about 300,000 lures are produced in a year.

After punching, the spoons are placed in drums about a foot in diameter by 18 inches long, filled with small steel balls and water, where they are polished and the rough edges are removed as the drums rotate. The next step is painting, and this is done with spray guns and stencils. Two women can paint 14 dozen spoons in one and a half to two hours. Then the hooks and rings are attached and the lures are stapled to cards, ready for the market which includes all of Canada. Mr. Thompson produces 10 types of lures, and there are 12 sizes of each type.

Mr. Thompson started making lures in 1929 at his hometown Abernathy, Sask., in 1929. Four years ago he moved to Lacombe. Asked why he chose Lacombe, Alberta, Mr. Thompson replied that the town has a plentiful supply of very soft water, an asset in polishing the spoons, and this was the deciding factor when he had made up his mind to re-locate. "Besides," Mr. Thompson added, "we think Lacombe is a good town, situated in a choice part of the province."

In the previous article I mentioned Sam Hodgson's juniper carvings in the Drumheller museum. In case some readers are interested in such carvings, but do not plan to go to Drumheller, samples can be seen at Swain's Esso Service on No. 2 Highway in Lacombe. These carvings were done by Mr. Swain, who learned the craft from Mrs. Hodgson a number of years ago. Some of these pieces represent 70 hours of work with jack-knife and sandpaper.

For luncheon our party enjoyed the hospitality of the Lacombe Board of Trade, following which we were taken on a bus tour of the Lacombe nurseries, one of the largest such farms in Canada, the furniture factory at the Canadian Union College and the Lacombe Experimental Station.

John MacDonald, owner of the nurseries, told us about 2,000 tourists drop in each summer to see his farm. Plants and shrubs are sent all over Western Canada, he said. A recent installation was a $6,000 irrigation system which is capable of sprinkling an inch of water in three hours.

At the Union College our party saw students making upholstered furniture on an assembly-line basis. Both boys and girls work in this factory, as well as in the ultra-modern printing plant and book bindery, and in this way earn their college tuition fees. To illustrate their rate of production, over a half million dollars worth of furniture was manufactured at the college last year. The college welcomes visitors, as does the Lacombe Experimental Station which was our next stop.

Tourists from all over the world have come in at the experimental station, and the number of visitors in one year, according to J. Shothart, superintendent, varies from 2,000 to 10,000. It was at this farm that the now famous Lacombe boar was developed.

Cross-breeding of hogs was started in 1946, and 1955 saw the promise of results. It was registered in 1957 and was made available across Canada for the first time the following year on a draw basis.

At Red Deer, our tour included the city's industrial and residential areas, as well as the Provincial Training School for the mentally retarded. In this city tourists can see the largest spheroid water tower in the world with a capacity of 500,000 gallons. Other attractions include the Red Deer River canyon, with walls 500 feet high, five golf courses within a 14-mile radius of the city, and five lakes in the surrounding parkland country. Red Deer is more or less a hub for tourists who may wish to locate in a central point and visit the various resorts of central Alberta. There are a number of first-rate hotels and motels in the city.

The Red Deer Chamber of Commerce was host for a reception and dinner Monday evening in the ultra-modern Capri Motor Hotel.

On Tuesday, September 11 our tour took us to Sylvan Lake for breakfast with the Sylvan Chamber; lunch at Rocky Mountain House with the town councillors as hosts, then to Calgary through Rcinus and Innisfail.

Sylvan Lake, like Pigeon and Gull Lakes to the north, is excellent for family vacations. The beaches are sandy, and the water is very shallow for several yards distance from the shore, making all three lakes very suitable for small children. These lakes are also very popular with those who enjoy boating.

At Sylvan we noted seven camp kitchens situated along the highway into town. To illustrate the influx of tourists during the summer, Bill Crockett, who owns the Sylvan Lake Creamery and supplies milk for the town, told us that milk consumption during the holiday season is four to five times that of the winter months.

Rocky Mountain House residents—numbering 2574—are marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of their townsite this year.

"Rocky" is best known as a haven for big game hunters every fall. For tourists who wish to "get back to nature" during the summer, they could find no better area than that which lies to the west of Rocky Mountain House, including beautiful Crimmon Lake. The David Thompson Highway now under construction, starts at "Rocky," and winds its way over thickly wooded areas to the Banff-Jasper Highway.

Near the town is the site where David Thompson spent the winter of 1807. Two large stone fireplaces used by the Thompson expedition, can be seen where the fort was located at the confluence of the North Saskatchewan and Clearwater Rivers. This area is popular with fishermen.

Our next stop was near Rcinus where another tourist attraction is being developed. It is called The Frontier, and includes cabins, barbecue pits, camp grounds, a trailer park, burros for kiddies to ride, and a miniature stage coach, a coffee bar and dining room, all situated in a lovely wooded area. Here, too, fishermen have no trouble catching their limit in just a few hours.

A two-hour drive over pavement took us to Calgary, and our visit here, as well as in Banff and the back country west of High River and Nanton, will be covered in the next article of this series.

Sixty years ago there were less than 50 sanatorium beds in all of Canada. Thousands of patients were at home. The doctor advised rest, fresh air and nourishing food. If the patient could afford it there was an additional recommendation that the fresh air be high and dry—the desert of Arione or prairies being preferred. If this course was financially impossible a tent in the back yard at home, or a sleeping porch, was the compromise. Death rates from TB at that time were 40 times what they are today!

Every newspaper has odd corners where the type does not quite fit the space. Into these places anything from one to ten lines of type is tacked. Most newspapers can use huge quantities of these fillers. They are so useful that many papers which will use nothing else will use them.
